

Beautiful by nature, Protected by us. How does it affect us? By A.M.

Provo Primary School has been working on different class projects to show what “Beautiful By Nature, Protected By Us” really means. Read on to find out WHAT each class has done.

S.K, J.K and Pre-school have worked together to complete a beautiful painting of the beach. Even they have something to show just to say ‘keep our beaches clean.’ The toddlers painted a rock with their hands and decorated a wooden post with flowers, rocks and leaves to represent that we have loads of beautiful things around that aren’t nice hotels and jewels. Year One has made sculptures of flowers and plants in the sand. Year Two has made a sculpture of the beach, again to show that we shouldn’t litter. Last but not least Year Four is going to Long Bay beach to pick up litter and make signs to protest against littering and harming our environment with photography. Our school really believes it is important to stick to the slogan. There is just one least question; do you want our island to stay beautiful?

‘Beautiful By Nature’ -What does it mean? By M.W.

Provo Primary School are thinking about what ‘Beautiful by Nature, protected by us’ means to them. The National Trust and Turks and Caicos Conservation Society have asked schools - how can we conserve our island for generations to come? What does the slogan mean to you?

Today, I saw the younger children paint a beautiful painting of a beach which is trying to tell everyone we should all keep our beaches clean and beautiful. Also that no-one should destroy our amazing beaches and marine life. We should protect them. They also used a tree trunk and put rocks, flowers and leaves to make a lovely structure to represent how beautiful our island is. Year 1 made a very beautiful structure out of objects they found around the school. So they are celebrating that we can use our surroundings and make something really amazing out of it! Year Two had a box that re[resented how beautiful our island is and we should all protect it. Year Four are going to Long Bay beach to clean up all of the rubbish. Year Four are using ‘protest photography’ to demand that our beaches stay clean.

Ms Stef, a staff member said “I like the slogan because it is our responsibility to take care of this beautiful island that nature has given us.” A student added, “We have to protect and love our environment and get it ready for the future.”

Our school believes it is important to celebrate the beauty of our nature but also to ensure we protect it for the future. I think that the slogan is very important because it is telling everyone we should protect and take care of our islands.

Are you protecting the islands?

‘Beautiful by Nature, Protected by Us’ by E.R

Today all the schools are thinking about what our slogan is: Beautiful by Nature, protected by us, and what it means to them. Specifically at Provo Primary School we are learning about ‘Beautiful By Nature.' For instance Year 1's are making a picture with marbles to make a flower meaning 'surrounding us is beauty, let's celebrate that.' Year Two's are making a sculpture to represent that we need to keep our beaches clean. The Year Fours are going on a trip to Long Bay beach to clean the beach and create protest photography. This represents that we need to protect our beaches, they also made posters about our slogan and they are even making slogans against littering and keeping dolphins like Jojo free.

The toddlers painted a rock and a tree stump. There was a picture using; smooth stones; beautiful yellow flowers and small green leaves. J.K, S.K and Pre-school made a painting of the sea using their hands. As you have noticed most of these are art. Miss Stef (a staff member) said "I like the slogan because it is our responsibility to take care of this beautiful island that nature gave us."

I think that she's completely right and that we should take care of this island that is completely 'Beautiful by Nature.'

Beautiful by Nature.... by T.W

On beautiful by Nature day, students around Provo and the rest of the T.C.I made their voices heard by cleaning up Grace Bay to giving tips to tourists. At Provo Primary school the Pre-school, S.K and J.K all took part by decorating their school with natural art. The school is now spotted with shiny rocks, colourful leaves and many other inspirations to keep the island clean and tidy.

In Year 1 children worked on making a flower out of marbles and making natural things out of unnatural objects. "I like the slogan," said Ms Stef, secretary, "it is our responsibility to protect what nature has given us." Year Two is working on making a structure to show the importance of preserving nature. Year Four has gone to the beach to make sure no-one throws rubbish in the ocean and at the same time, picking it up and taking protest photography. Year 5/6 is writing an article about what every class is doing and writing what they feel as well. What I feel is no matter what happens, put beauty before the money!!
