

I have a dream...

I am happy to be here today to talk to you about what you and I care about in our world.

Our world's next generation is us and we have to take care of it. Almost 98% of the world has innocent people starving to death. We all have to stand together to stop world hunger.

Every year, millions of people die of hunger. Every year, dozens of poor children's parents die of hunger and no one will take care of the defenceless child.

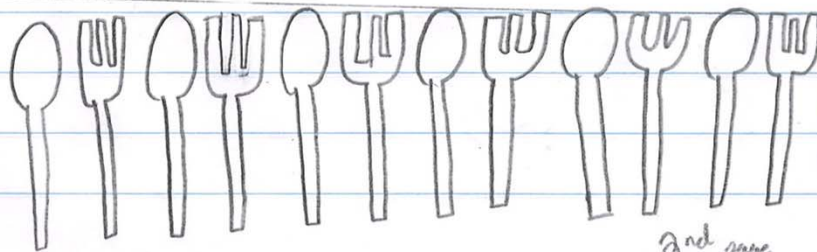

Every year, 1 and 9 people in the whole world die of hunger. Isn't that terrible, despicable and cruel? That they die and we have food to eat, however we don't do anything!

I have a dream

I imagine, that you are one of the people who are living but without any food. I imagine, yourself begging for food or cash just for the sake of your children. I imagine, people in front of you dying because we don't feed them or provide them with food. I imagine yourself eating too much food and dying because your overfeeding yourself but there is someone in the world, needing food. Compare yourself to hungry people.

Are you 1 of those people who can just walk towards your fridge and get food even though other people have to walk miles for one meal or just 1 thing to eat?
We all have to fight against

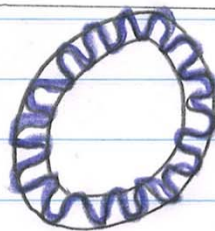

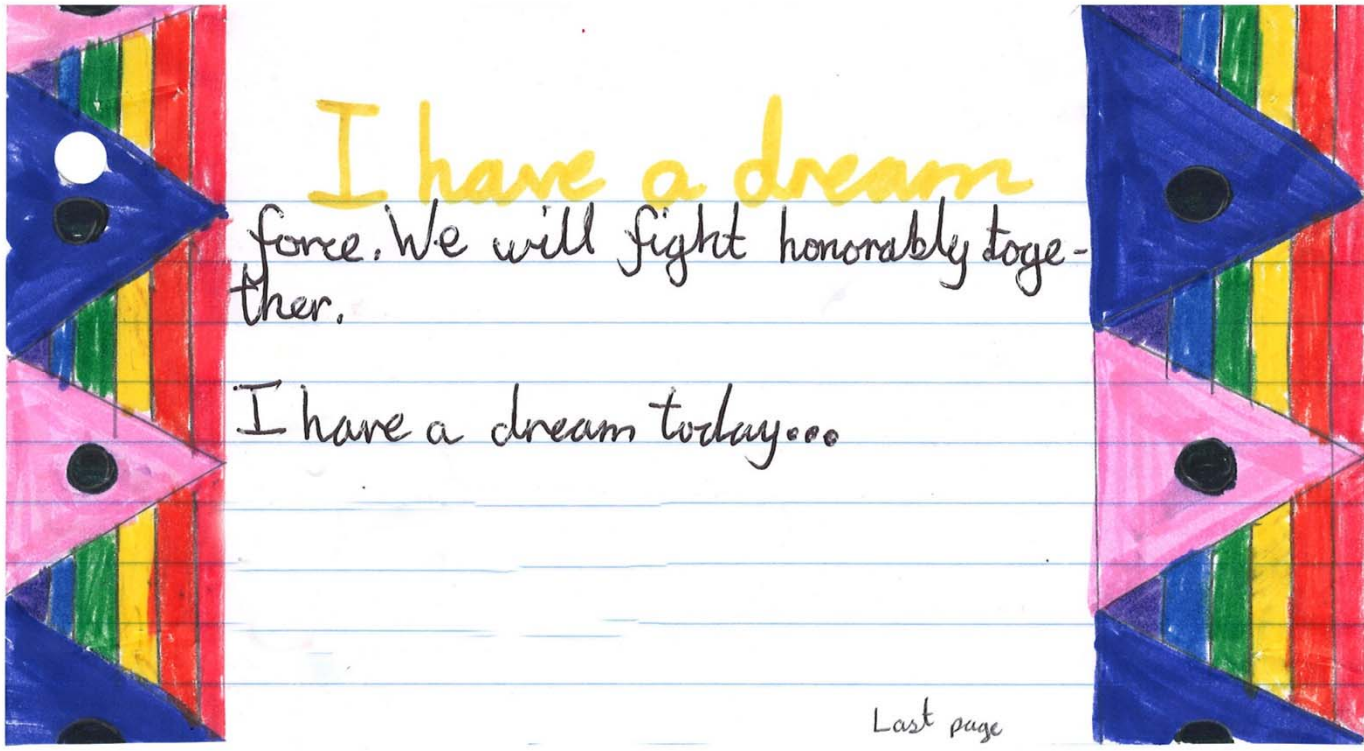

I have a dream

hunger in the world. We all have to go around the world and feed hungry people and provide them with food for a whole year.

I have seen hungry people in my country, begging for money or food for them to survive the cold, damp night of hunger. You probably have seen them before and you know how it feels to see them. You probably feel guilty when you see them when you have food but they don't.

I have a dream today that when I grow up there will be no longer hunger in the world. I will stand beside you and fight a long the way but we will not meet physical force with soul force. We will fight honorably together.

I have a dream

I have a dream today...

Last page