

Elunali the home of dragons

One day there was a little boy called Michael. He was a lonely and troublesome boy. One day he was building a boat, (and spilling his lunch all over the carpet) when his Mum shouted "go put on clean clothes!" "No, you can not tell me what to do!" said Michael in a very grumpy and irritated voice. So, he was sent to his room. Suddenly Michael had an idea, he put on his dragon suit and decided to play dragons. His dragon suit had silver wings, a scaly red body, a blue head a neon green tail with a diamond at the end, neon green spikes and a diamond crest on the chest.

While Michael was pacing around his room thinking of what to play, his room began to transform. Amazed Michael began to wander around this mysteriously magical forest. All around him he could hear the whispering of the trees, and their emerald green leaves shimmering in the sunlight. While he was roaming around he noticed something in the distance. It was a midnight blue path that lead on forever, nearby there was a sled it was a sky blue ~~sled~~ with white runners. He decided to see what the sled and the Midnight blue path did together. So, he put the sled on the path hopped on and, to Michael's amazement sped off!

After hours of speeding through trees and fields and snow which was ever so boring the sled began to slow down and then finally stopped. Michael looked up in front of him was the largest Mountain in the world Mount Everest. Without thinking he spread out his wings and took off he flew through the air with great ease and soared with great balance. So in no time he was at the top of the mountain.

Michael could see something coming down at him very slowly. Bravely he flew up to them. "Who are you what is your name" said a dragon very curiously.

"I am Michael a Diamond Dragon" said Michael lying about the last sentence.

"We are the Diamond Dragons of Elunali and we want to make you King!" said all of the dragons.

After having a great feast and doing lots of flying tricks Michael began to feel homesick.

"Go to your caves and stay there," said Michael. Then he hopped on the sled and it took him home to where his sapper and desert was waiting.

The End
