

Danger Island

Once upon a time there lived a ten year old boy; he lived in Canada, named Daniel. He was very lonely with no friends but very cheeky and cruel to his mum and dad. Daniel was an explorer that always wore a tuxedo. Inside his room he was building a Lego forest, while he was doing this he was making a lot of noise by making animal noises. He was a very adventurous kid. Daniel got so exhausted he flopped on his bed. Suddenly his messy room turned into a gigantic, damp and creepy forest.

Daniel stumbled across a misty, dark dangerous lake. He looked over and saw a sign that was almost broken that said "welcome to danger". Daniel was very scared, he wants to know if anyone was there so he shouted "hello anyone here?", no one answered, all he could hear was his echo. He looked over and saw an antique wooden sail boat. So he navigated across the rough and murky lake. It took him about on thousand years to get there. When he got to shore he was fast asleep. Then he got woken up by a pink person with a huge ruby head. Daniel got up and spoke "who are you? Get off me", and slapped them in the leg. "We....are....the....Manikins", said the Manikins . "Are you dangerous? Are you going to eat me?" said Daniel. "no....we....are....good....and....we....eat....animals", said the Manikins. The Manikins took Daniel with them to the king which spoke better English than the rest.

Daniel woke up and looked at the king of the Manikins and stated "what is this place", as he sat up. "This is Danger Island", explained the king. The next day he woke up and found a sword right on his face. "what is this doing on my face?" screamed Daniel. He got up and went straight to the king and said "hunting the Tereson, the most dangerous animal of them all", said the king. "There are about 1 million species here", said the king again. They all set off in a line and went into the forest, but I did not get to go when the king went. The day past by quick and the whole crew came back in a hot pursuit. Daniel looked around and the king was gone. He asked one of the guys and they said he was dead. " Lock....the....gates!", commended one of the Manikins. He asked another Manikin and he said we are going to have war with the Teresons. All the Teresons came bounding over the gate, everyone was getting killed , Daniel and some other people were still standing.[the Teresons have a advantage] A Tereson came out of nowhere and scratched me with his poison's claws, He fell to the ground and realized that it was better to die because no one really loved him. He closed his eyes and woke up in his old messy bedroom with the Lego forest on the ground, and saw his breakfast on the table ready for him to eat.